

Technical Documentation

Our code is designed to be functional web development code. Across all of the main page code contains code that maintains an active connection to the SQL database until the connection is no longer needed. Also included across all of the code is they style that is maintained and the code for the sidebar which includes CSS, JavaScript, and HTML. All of our code is created just to make each function we included functional. Every page that ends in .php communicates with the database to handle login, or warehouse responsibilities.
